

Who Inspires You?

Show Notes for The Fun Road Podcast:

Today we are asking the question: who inspires you?

We all have our idols or people we look up to. But who truly inspires you? Who gets you into that mindset to do great things? Who motivates you to do those inspiring things you always think about doing?

There are things you know and believe about yourself, but sometimes you need someone you love and respect to confirm it. There has to be that connection that comes from your soul. Once you find that connection, you bloom!

Kass and Steve both share who their inspirations are. They talk about how those people inspired them to be the people who they are today. They talk about the most important things they learned from those people, and how they have used those tools to get to where they are.

A great takeaway that Kass and Steve want you to know is, you can do more than you think. You may think you don't have the capacities, but most people don't live up to their capacities.

Don't be your enemy, be your best friend. Treat people with kindness, and be kind to yourself. Don't treat people for who they are, treat them for who they can become! And use that mantra for yourself!
